

PROPHECIES CONCERNING THE REVIVAL OF ISRAEL:

Prophecies that are to be prayed - 05

Prophecies Concerning the Revival of Israel:

From the time the Lord first revealed about the revival of Israel, He often spoke, sharing specific details and various aspects pertaining to that revival. The following is a compilation of the things which the Lord revealed and spoke when the children of God waited and prayed in the land of Israel, and during my personal prayer also:

1. "I will plant the fig tree and the grapevine in the land that was trampled by gentiles and sown with salt so that it may no longer bear fruit. The fig tree will grow, but its fruits will be bitter in the beginning. Likewise, as the vine takes root and matures, its grapes will be sour and tart. The nations shall despise it for their deeds and will curse it. They will gather and conspire to cut it down. Nevertheless, their efforts will utterly fail.
2. In those days, I shall cause the light and the waters to break forth from the East. I will use the Gentiles to water it. The light shall restore health to its branches, and the waters shall cause its roots to flourish. Moreover, I will prune its boughs, and I shall bring forth healing in its leaves.
3. The first time I stretched out My hand and called David. He built the nation. I will stretch out My hand a second time and will turn over to him the nations that David ruled in ancient times. I will bring back the men of substance, the mighty men, those who wield the sword, those who lay in wait in ambush, and those who plough the fields and multiply its produce, and those who engage in trade and commerce, and the wise men. Nevertheless, the sceptre of the land will remain in Judah.
4. Before I gather My people, I will raise up those from the East who will pray for them. They will love My people in their hearts as their own people, and they will be burdened for My sake. I will put a burden and concern in their hearts for My scattered people. Each person will pray with a burden, just as one prays for their own country. There is none among the people of My land who prays or puts on the responsibility for My revival. Therefore, I will cause prayers to come forth from foreign nations, and I will fill them with the Spirit of prayer.
5. I will make those prayers as fertilizer for Israel and for Judah. Those prayers will cleanse the soil of the land, removing its salt, and will refine it, taking away its bitterness. It will nurture the roots of the fig tree so that it may bear fruit. It will fortify the branches of the grapevine. Buds will sprout, and a path will be made for new fruits to blossom. Then the sour

6. I will cause those who blow the trumpet to come forth from the nation I have appointed for revival. They will walk around, blowing their trumpets to separate the grain that clings to the ears of corn. The feet of those who walk will be like iron. It shall be called My power. Because they walk, the kernels will get separated from the stalks. Those who rise to pick and gather them separately, will bundle them.

7. In those days, I will command them, saying: 'Blow the trumpets. Blow the trumpet. Let your sound be heard like the voice of God echoing in Kadesh, and like the thunders descending upon Sinai. Make it to sound loudly on the banks of the river in Egypt, on its mountains, and in its valleys. Blow the trumpet in Goshen, in Pithom, in the outskirts of Memphis, and on the west bank of the river. My people are like grains clinging to the chaff. By the treading of your feet, they will be separated individually and brought toward the barn. The trumpets will cause it to move its place and bring it to its ancient place. Blow the trumpet in Ammon. Make it to be heard in Moab. Blow the trumpet in every place where My people are scattered.

8. In a little while, Benjamin shall rise up and roll away the stones. He will cause the foundations to shake. His feet shall advance quickly upon the nations where the remnant of the people of Israel dwell. He will lift up his feet to destroy the dwellings and to make them to flee from their habitations. Fire and brimstone shall proceed from the breath of his nostrils. The wings of an eagle shall be given to him. His feet will resemble the ripping feet of the wolf. Because he flies and hunts, he will boast in his strength. He will rip apart the nations with his teeth. He will lap up and drink the blood of the nations with his tongue.

9. It would be good if the one who holds the trumpets may rise up to gather My people before he rises and inflicts damage by fire. Then My people will be protected without any harm. The promise made for them will protect them. Those who seal up the wall will climb the rampart and close its breaches.

10. Furthermore, I will cause those who bear the light to come from the nations I have appointed for revival. They will set out and search and gather in Assyria, in Persia, in the land of Cush, and in the islands. My people, who are hiding in darkness, will draw toward the place of the light these ones carry. Their assurance will be to them like the promise of God. Miracles will proceed through their fingers, and anointing will flow through their hands. They will gather easily, like those who gather grass.

11. It would be good if the who one carries My light may rise up and go forth to find those things which are lost, before the times become terrible. If times are delayed, then My people will be destroyed in the nations where they dwell, by famines, by plagues, by the snares of the eagle, and by the venom of the serpent.

12. Furthermore, I spoke to your nation, saying: 'O nation! My nation! I have chosen you for the great revival which I shall cause to spring forth in the midst of the tribes and in the midst of the nations in the last days. You were filled with idols, and deeds of unrighteousness, and harlotries. There was blood in the hands of your forefathers, and gift of wandering in their feet and falsehood in their mouths. Inspite of it, I have chosen a small group for Myself from among you, and through them, I wait in grace to remove your bloodguilt, to cleanse your harlotries, and to forgive your falsehoods.

13. They will rise up and teach righteousness and truth to you. They will preach salvation and holiness to you. You will hear of God through their mouth, and seeking the majesty of the Lord, you will go forth. I will sprinkle clean water upon you and remove your transgressions from you.

14. Moreover, I will choose those whom I have chosen from among you, and purify them with My Spirit, and appoint them to gather My people, to proclaim salvation and cleansing to them, to wash them, and to plant them in their own country. From amongst you, I will choose the one who is faithful, the one who obeys My words, and the one who trembles at My words.

15. In order to gather My people, I will use some as Sowers, and waterers, and some as casters of nets and some as catchers who gather the fish in their net, and others as people who seek the things that are lost. I will bestow a keen eyesight to the one who searches for the lost things, and cause him to walk without stumbling even in darkness. He will gather those who have disappeared in darkness, and those who are scattered on the rocks and mountains, and those who are hiding in caves.

16. I will call some to go ahead of you. When you go out and begin to fulfill the tasks, I will give a command to the West and cause the people to set out from there also. They will follow you and assist you. Noble men and men of honor will be in it. You will use them as well to guide them and accomplish My will. They will strengthen your hands.

17. Furthermore, Korah and Dothan will rise up from among you, just as they rose when Moses led the people. These will be wicked people, sent as snares by Satan. Some of them will divert your paths, saying, 'Here is the path, this is easy.' Others will hasten to turn this scheme into a business. Still others will seek to exalt themselves among the tribes. Identify such people and remove them from your midst. Otherwise, they will weaken you.

18. Benjamin shall rise and march to wage war against his brothers. He will be like a ravening wolf. He will establish himself upon the corpses. You must rise up before he marches and destabilizes the plans. He will be driven by a wicked spirit. Bloodthirsty men will be his helpers. I will fill you with My Spirit to confront him. My Spirit of war will quench the fire and devour the brimstone.

19. Therefore, you will disgrace the disgracer. You paralyze the hands of the blood thirsty. I will cause swords to proceed from your mouths. You will not be seen in the battle, yet you will shoot your arrows into the battlefield. Your arrows shall go forth as the arrows of the Lord. I will raise you up to protect My people and to gather them.

20. I will gather the remnant of My people from all the places where they are scattered, and bring them through you. And through you, I will bestow upon them the Spirit of awareness and the Spirit of renewal. Furthermore, I will fill them with My life so that life may be in them such that they may become an army, standing behind Me. Through you, I will bring them into their folds.

21. The tiny flock that was brought in by you will greatly multiply in their folds. I will establish you to watch over and tend them. You will strengthen them with My bread, which is the word, and with My water, which is My Spirit. You will watch over them from your own places. You will feed them even from your own places. On account of this, I will lift up your heads and cause you to be exalted above the people of My land,” says the Lord.

Prayer Points:

1. Pray that all the ways appointed by the Lord for the revival destined for the Israelites may be opened. Knowing that their time is drawing to an end, Satan is stirring wars and unrest all around the nation of Israel, creating obstacles so that the people of God appointed to fulfil the plan will not carry out the task freely. Pray that this situation may change and a peaceful atmosphere may arise all around the nation of Israel.

2. Pray that God's will that all Israelites should be saved and God's purpose that they should be gathered and brought to their own land may be fulfilled. Today, those in the land of Israel are not the complete tribes of Israel; the ten scattered tribes are spread across many nations in the world. They themselves are not aware who they are. Only the Lord can revive them. Pray that they all may be revived.

3. The Scripture says that the Israelites will obtain salvation through the Gentiles (Romans 11:30-31). It is likely that those Gentiles are the Indians whom the Lord is going to use in the end-time revival. Pray that the plan for the salvation of the Israelites may be fulfilled through Indians. Pray that the Lord may take and use you also in that action plan of revival. Pray that faithful people of God and ministers who are worthy to be used by the Lord in this plan may rise up from our nation.

4. Primarily, those who pray for the fulfilment of this plan are needed. Pray so that prayer cells, churches, and prayer warriors dedicated to this purpose may rise up in large numbers. There is a great need for more evangelists to preach the Gospel among the Israelites so that revival may appear among them. Pray that the Lord may open doors to proclaim the Gospel to them, and that the Lord may raise up evangelists who are capable of proclaiming the Gospel to the Israelites.

5. Today, those who dwell in the land of Israel are not the only Israelites; the other scattered tribes also exist in many nations. It is the will of God to save all of them and unite them together. Pray that the Lord may reveal these lost tribes, and that the Lord may grant them the Spirit of awareness so that they may recognize who they are, and that the Lord may reveal and show us the places where they are scattered.

6. The vision concerning the dry bones which the Lord gave to Ezekiel refers to the scattered tribes of Israel. Through Ezekiel, the Lord sent words to make those bones rejuvenate. Then, He sent the Holy Spirit upon them so that they all might resurrect. This is a sign of things to come. Pray that the Lord may grant the words to unite these dried-up tribes, and that He may pour out the Spirit upon them to revive those who are integrated and inherit their identity.

7. Pray that wicked individuals, organisations with commercial motive, and servants without vision, who are waiting to rise up, claiming to be worthy of the calling, and using revival as an excuse to commercialize so as to promote themselves, and to create confusion may not rise and divert the mission. Pray that such wicked servants may be restrained, and that the Lord may hinder them even before they attempt to rise up. Also, pray by rebuking the wicked spirits of Satan that rises up against these plans.
